Games & Activities:

Set aside time for fun indoor and outdoor activities!

There's a Pony on My Back

Pair up your party guests (three's ok too) and put a sticker or a picture of a printable MY LITTLE PONY character on each child's back. Have the guests try to guess which pony is on their back by asking their partners questions that can be answered with only "yes" or "no". For example, "Am I pink?," "Can I fly?," or "Do I dance?"

Roundabout Relay

Before the party, cut four large hearts (or other fun MY LITTLE PONY shapes like hot air balloons!) out of cardboard. At the party, divide your guests into two equal lines and give the first person in each line two of the cardboard hearts. These become portable stepping-stones the child uses to travel from the front of the line, across the room, around a chair and back to the line again. The game begins by having the first child on each team place one heart shape on the ground and step on it. Then, they place the other heart shape on the ground in front of the first and step on it. Next, they pick up the first cardboard shape and place it on the ground in front of the other, etc. When they reach the finish line, they hand the two stepping-stones to the next player in line. The team whose players make it through the course first, wins!

Birthday Parties

Birthday Cake Hunt

Kids love to hunt for surprises! So on your child's big day, create a special hunt for the birthday cake! You will need the help of a few family members, neighbors, or friends. Let the children separate into teams and give each team a set of clues and party favors to find. Let the children separate into teams and give each team a set of clues and party favors to find. Give each child a bag to put their favors in and make sure that each guest has at least one favor so nobody feels left out. The clues and favors should lead them to the location of the cake. We recommend keeping the cake close at hand and under adult supervision. Excited children running through the house with a cake can be messy! The first team to locate the cake gets served first!

Balloon Relay Race

Instruct the children to stand in two single-file lines, facing forward. Place a balloon between the knees of the first child in each line. When the race starts, the first child on each team turns to face the next person in line. The second child must grasp the balloon with his or her knees and turn to pass it on to the third person, and so on. If the balloon falls to the ground, the team must start over. The first team to successfully pass the balloon down the line wins!
